We have the honour to transmit to you herewith a Joint Declaration, issued in Rome on 10 February 1998, by the President of the Russian Federation, Boris Yeltsin, and the President of the Council of Ministers of the Republic of Italy, Romano Prodi, on the situation in Iraq (see annex).

Joint Declaration by the President of the Russian Federation and the President of the Council of Ministers of the Republic of Italy, issued in Rome on 10 February 1998

The situation with regard to Iraq is becoming increasingly tense. At the same time, as a result of the political efforts of many States, there are indications that it may be possible to resolve the crisis by diplomatic means.

The international community is naturally interested in the elimination of weapons of mass destruction in Iraq, and this requires that inspections be carried out throughout Iraqi territory and that Iraq comply with the relevant United Nations resolutions. The Iraqi leadership must realize that it is responsible for the situation that has arisen and act in a constructive manner.

Diplomatic efforts to defuse this dangerous crisis must be intensified in order to avoid military action, which could have unforeseen consequences.

There is reason to believe that the United Nations Secretary-General, Kofi Annan, can play a coordinating role in resolving the issue of how to end the current crisis. In these circumstances, it is of crucial importance that he travel to Baghdad.

LETTER DATED 11 FEBRUARY 1998 FROM THE PERMANENT REPRESENTATIVE OF IRAQ TO THE UNITED NATIONS ADDRESSED TO THE SECRETARY-GENERAL

On instructions from my Government, I have the honour to inform you that:

1. At 1400 hours on 20 January 1998, a tugboat and two small Kuwaiti vessels entered Iraqi territorial waters near buoy No. 21 off Umm Qasr (Governorate of Basra) and fired at an Iraqi coastguard patrol.

2. At 1600 hours on 31 January 1998, seven people, including two in Arab clothing, got out of two Kuwaiti vehicles (a black Pajero and a Superman) which were accompanied by a United Nations vehicle. The individuals in question, who were between markers Nos. 103 and 104, took photos of Iraqi territory. At 1615 hours, they set off again for Kuwait.

I request you to intervene with Kuwait to put an end to these violations which, without justification, have been becoming increasingly frequent. These acts constitute a violation of the Charter of the United Nations and the rules of international law and infringe the sovereignty and security of Iraq.

I also wish to reaffirm the right of the Republic of Iraq to demand compensation for the harm suffered by it and its people as a result of these acts of provocation.

I should be grateful if you would have the text of this letter distributed as a document of the Security Council.
